THE NEWS.

Published at Statesboro, Ga.,
EVERY FRIDAY

By The Statesboro News Publishing Co.

Alfred Austin insists that the poets of the age are deteriorating. All he has to do to prove it is to offer his verses in evidence, says the Washington Post.

The freshman class of Barnard College is said to take huge pride in having produced a "yell" as meaningless as any ever contrived by the struggling student intellect, says the Boston Transcript. As prescribed by the Barnard Bulletin the dose is:

Re-on, ry-on, hullabaloo!
Re-on, ry-on, boomerangeroo!
Sibilee, tibilee, sibiloo, late!
Barnard, Barnard, nineteen-eight!
The higher education of woman touches well nigh unfathomable depths sometimes.

In an authoritative article in Harper's Weekly, Louis Bell, Ph.D., tells of some remarkable new developments in electrical science which were discussed at the recent International Electrical Congress at St. Louis. Power transmission to-day is not cut short by the physical limitations of distance, but only by the competition of other power when the cost of lines becomes too great. The fifty-mile limit was passed half a dozen years ago in a plant near Fresno, California; and at present "two great plants are delivering power to the vicinity of San Francisco from stations in the mountains 150 miles away. The farthest regular customers on branch lines are nearly 200 miles from their source of power."

If Germany stands for anything it is for education, the Chicago Chronicle declares. It is now proposed to establish a school for the instruction of people who intend to emigrate from Germany to other countries. The plan is for the person who wishes to leave the Fatherland to take a course in the history and economic conditions of the country to which he wishes to go. The purpose is not wholly disinterested, for it is thought that many will remain at home when they know fully the situation of affairs in other countries. Great benefit would result to the United States if all European countries would establish such schools and do something toward fitting emigrants for the new conditions on which they are to enter.

Over the cable, the other day, came the gladsome tidings that one party of British society "sportsmen" had made a day's record of 2300 rabbits and that another party had promptly eclipsed the performance by "bagging" 3030 partridges, says the New York World. Where furred and feathered innocents are thus shot down by thousands, it is a fine line which separates the game preserve from the shambles. Yet what stilled English expert with the multi-charged shotgun would consent to hang a butcher's sign above his gates? The question becomes especially interesting as we read in the current news at home of great preserves in North Carolina, modelled after those abroad, where birds are bred and fed by thousands especially for the scattering shots of millionaires from "up North."

Although the construction of the great turbine-propelled liners for the Cunard Company overshadows in public interest every other marine turbine development just now, it is a fact that there will be some splendid specimens of turbine ocean liners in service on the high seas long before the Cunard vessels are in the water, states the Scientific American. Mention should be made incidentally of the "Turbina," which was launched not very long ago in Great Britain, and will soon cross the Atlantic for service on Lake Erie.

Before many weeks a large steamer, the "Tasmania," will be dispatched to Australia, and the line will place two turbine-driven liners in the Atlantic service of the company. Next year, moreover, turbine-driven Cunard steamers of half the tonnage of the twenty-ton 40,000-ton turbine ships will be plying between Liverpool and the United States. Considering that the turbine is but a decade and a half old, this must be considered a rapid development of what is considered an entirely new branch of engineering.

James Watson, who was named at Washington, D.C., as the trustee of the University of Wisconsin, has been more than ever fixed to make this school winter course in agriculture one of the most attractive and most beneficial parts of the university course.

GEORGIA.

Brief Summary of Doings Throughout the State.

Court Cost Pile of Money.

At the session of the United States court recently held at Valdosta, it is reported that between $4,000 and $5,000 was paid out to witnesses and jurors. Of this amount a woman witness from Chicago received $92.40 for mileage, having come the distance of 984 miles.

Cotton Conference of Bankers.

The cotton conference of bankers, insurance men and others who figure in the plan for storing and holding cotton for a minimum price of 10 cents has been called to meet at the Piedmont hotel, in Atlanta, on January 24th.

Compulsory Vaccination Ordered.

A meeting of the county commissioners of Putnam county and the board of education was held at Eatonton recently at which compulsory vaccination has been ordered for the schools of Putnam county. A few mild cases of variola appeared among the white citizens recently, creating some alarm and precautionary measures were adopted at once.

Plant Estate in Good Shape.

Receiver N. B. Corlin, of the estate of the late R. H. Plant, head of two banks in Macon, who committed suicide when the institutions failed, has made a report showing that $768,000 is now on hand. The Idle Hour farm, belonging to the estate, has been self-supporting, and some improvements have been made on the premises. The Idle Hour nurseries have been operated at a profit.

Taylor Appointed Minute Clerk.

W. H. Taylor, of Griffin, has been appointed by Governor Terrell minute clerk in the executive department to succeed Benton Odum, state senator from the ninth district, who resigned upon his election to the senate.

Mr. Taylor is a well-known young lawyer of Griffin, and will take charge of his new position on January 2.

G. A. R. Men Honor Gordon.

One of the best known grand army posts in the country, Hannibal Hamlin post, No. 165, of Bangor, Me., at a recent meeting adopted resolutions paying warm tribute to the memory of the late General John B. Gordon, and at the same time appointing a committee to raise funds to aid in the erection of the proposed monument to the south's great hero.

Negro Granted a Respite.

Governor Terrell has granted a respite until Friday, January 13, to Whitley Williford, colored, who was sentenced to be hanged Tuesday, the 27th, in Mitchell county for the murder of a young white man named Harmon West.

The reason for granting the respite was to give the prison commission an opportunity to investigate the case with a view to determining whether or not Williford's punishment should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Tragedy at Milledgeville.

West Cook shot and killed Sam Reese and August L. Brooks at Milledgeville on Christmas eve. Reese is a negro. Brooks was an innocent bystander and is a man well thought of. The trouble arose between Cook and the negro. The negro was shot three times, once through the leg and twice through the body. Brooks was shot through the neck. Both died instantly.

J. H. Elliott, an aged citizen, who was standing near the scene, received a flesh wound from a stray bullet. A negro and his mule were also hurt. Cook was jailed.

Farmers Meet in Hawkinsville.

A rousing meeting of farmers from all points of the compass was held in Hawkinsville last Saturday, and they discussed the present cotton problem. Interesting talks were made by many leading citizens, all taking the point of view that the cotton acreage must be reduced and that more attention must be paid to raising more foodstuffs.

It was manifested that what unsold cotton there is in the section will be held indefinitely for a rise in price and that less will be planted next year. They will meet January 16th to complete the organization.

Winter School of Agriculture.

The winter school of agriculture in the University of Georgia will open its session January 2. The outlook for a large attendance upon this branch of the university is very flattering, and the authorities of the university have made preparations for a better course of study this year than ever before.

Packing House, Tax Cases.
The famous packing house tax case comes up in the United States supreme court early in January, and Attorney General John C. Hart is preparing to make an argument before that court in the state's behalf. This case went up on certiorari from the state supreme court, which held that the $200 specific tax on packing house packing houses contend that the tax violates the constitution of the United States, in that it is class legislation, the claim being made that no similar tax is put on agencies in Georgia or other foreign corporations.

Killed Blind Negro.
R. W. Collier, a member of a prominent Terrell county family living near Sasser, has been placed in a cell of the Dougherty county jail at Albany charged with murder.

Although the victim was a negro, the crime has aroused a great deal of indignation because the victim, who was about 24 years old, had been blind from birth. The killing occurred in the extreme eastern portion of the county and is said to have been totally unprovoked. Collier was under the influence of whiskey.

Preferred Crime to Vaccination.
At Sandersville, Boss Garrett shot and killed Special Officer Gideon Matthews while resisting arrest because of refusing to submit to compulsory vaccination.

Garrett escaped, but a strong posse of citizens was immediately formed and started in pursuit. The fleeing man was overtaken one mile north of town. He attempted further flight and was shot through the thigh by Deputy Marshal Wilson, arrested and lodged in the county jail.

Garrett also sustained a serious wound in the right side, inflicted by Special Officer Matthews.

Many Families Migrating.
Eight or ten white families, well-to-do farmers residing near Machen, in Jasper county, have recently pulled out for South Georgia. They have purchased farms in Pulaski and Laurens counties, in the vicinity of Dexter, where a settlement was started last year by several Jasper county farmers. It is stated by those who have gone from this section that the farms in that locality are very fertile, producing a bale of cotton to the acre, and are being sold at very reasonable prices. Many others, it is said, from Jasper county and the eastern part of Newton county contemplate locating in this section of Georgia.

Judges Take Oath of Office.
Four justices of the supreme court of Georgia were sworn in by Governor Joseph M. Terrell Friday. Two of the justices began new terms of six years each, while two of the justices were sworn in for unexpired terms.

Chief Justice Thomas J. Simmons and Assistant Justice William R. Fish were sworn in for terms of six years each, which Justice Lamar took the oath for four years.

These four judges will get the benefit of the bill recently passed by the legislature raising the salaries of supreme court judges to $4,000 a year. Justice Candler, who is now in the bench will not get an increase until 1907, and Justice Cobb until 1909, as the constitution of the state provides that the salary of an officer cannot be raised during his term.

Annual Inspection of Troops.
Annual inspection of all the troops in the Georgia state militia for 1905, will begin on February 1, next, and will be concluded on April 16.

The dates for the inspection of each company and cavalry troop in the state have been announced in orders from headquarters of the Atlantic Division, United States Army, signed by Colonel H. O. S. Holstead, assistant adjutant general, copies of which have been received at the office of Adjutant General S. W. Harris at Atlanta.

These orders detail certain regular army officers to accompany Colonel William G. Obeir, inspector general, Georgia state troops, on the annual tour of inspection of the state militia. This year five United States army officers have been detailed for this duty, instead of one as heretofore.
